VALUE OF MODERN MACHINE GUN IS PROVEN TO WORLD

French Front, Nov. 8.—German appreciation of the value of the machine gun in modern battles was apparent at the very beginning of hostilities in 1914 and the most recent developments in their infantry formations give testimony of ever-extending reliance on this weapon for the defense of the front line.

Each German infantry regiment will be provided with no fewer than 24 of these weapons, whose manipulators are formed into a separate company, and besides these each company is to be furnished with six light rapid fire guns, altogether making a formidable equipment. This is an enormous increase over the number provided at the beginning of the war, when each regiment of infantry of the active army and its reserve possessed only six of these guns.

Besides the regimental machine guns, special companies have been formed with the title of "Maschinen-gewehrscharschützungsabteilungen." These operate separately from the battalions of infantry in attacks. They are composed of groups of six machine guns each, and three of these groups as a rule work together. There are altogether over two hundred of these groups and their number is rapidly increasing. They came first into action during the battle of the Somme and they were engaged also in the battles round Verdun.

All the efforts of the Germans to find an effective portable machine-gun or automatic rifle such as that possessed by the French and British troops appear to have been unsuccessful, and although such weapons have been brought into action on several occasions they have quickly disappeared.

EASTON

The Dorcas society of the Baptist church will hold a "sale" in their hall on Friday afternoon and evening, commencing at 2 o'clock. There will be a chicken pie supper served from 7 until 9 o'clock. Many fancy articles, including handkerchiefs and bed-quits, will be in the sale. If stormy on Friday the sale will be postponed until Saturday.

"The Four and Twenty Whist club" will be entertained on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Hull.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Seeley welcomed a little girl into their home a few days ago and have named it Lorraine Marsh Seeley.

The Baptist church will be closed on Sunday, November 11th, as the pastor, Rev. Mr. Fredericks, is going away for a short vacation. There was a union meeting of the Methodist, Baptist and Congregational churches at the Baptist church on Sunday evening. Rev. Mr. Edwards, pastor of the Congregational church, had charge of the services.

Clarence A. Jennings has his new house nearly completed on Sport Hill. Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Gillette were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Wilson of Fairfield. John Keller, who is at Camp Devens, was in town on Sunday with his sister, Miss Adele Keller.

Any man who grows about the new taxes can always enlist and help shorten the time we have to pay them.

After starting a rumor that the allies are going to desert Russia, the Germans start another that Russia is going to desert the allies.

EDIBLE FRUITS FROM NUMEROUS FOREST TREES

It is said that Daniel Boone and some of our other early pioneers could go into the wilderness with only a rifle and a sack of salt and live in comfort on the game and other wild food which the woods afforded. While few people want to try that sort of thing now, persons who know the food value of the fruits of our native trees and shrubs are, according to foresters, able to use them to good advantage in supplementing other foods.

Aside from the numerous edible mushrooms, roots, fruits or shrubs and smaller plants, the trees of our forests afford a large variety of edibles which are highly prized by woods connoisseurs. First in importance, of course, are our native nuts—beech-nuts, butternuts, walnuts, chestnuts and chinquapins, hazel nuts, and several kinds of hickory nuts, including pecans. The kernels of all of these are not only toothsome but highly nutritious and are used by vegetarians to replace meat. The oil of the beech nut is said to be little inferior to olive oil, while that of butternuts and walnuts was used by some of the Indians for various purposes. The Indians, it is said, also formerly mixed chestnuts with cornmeal and made a bread which was baked in corn husks, like tomatoes. In parts of Europe bread is made from chestnuts alone. The chestnut crop in this country is being reduced each year by the chestnut blight which in some sections is gradually killing out the tree. Acorns are commonly thought to be fit only for feeding hogs, but many kinds of them can be made edible and nourishing for people as well. The Indian custom was to pound or grind the acorns up and leach out the tannin, which makes most of them unfit for eating when raw, by treating the pulp with hot water. The resulting flour, which contained considerable starch, was made either into a porridge or baked in small cakes of bread. As a rule, the acorns of the various white oaks having less tannin are the ones best suited for food, but Indians also used those of the black oaks, even though they contain much tannin. The acorns of the basket or cow oak, the chinquapin oak, shin or Rocky Mountain oak, live oak, and of several other species, are sweet enough to be eaten raw.

CLUB HOUSE FOR BOYS AT DEVENS NOW CERTAIN

Before the snow flies the soldiers at Camp Devens and a club of their own in the town of Ayer. It will be run and "policed" by them and the entertainments will be of their making.

The club will be located at the corner of Cambridge and West streets, within 200 yards of the Ayer depot, and is now under construction. In a few days' work will commence on still another club which will be erected on the shore of Robbin's Pond, just outside the camp.

These clubs will cost almost $100,000 and are being built in anticipation of the gifts that the War Camp Fund will receive this week when the Boston committee will make an effort to raise $200,000, while $700,000 is the New England quota in the National drive for $4,000,000 for constructive work of this kind in towns surrounding the 80 or more army and navy camps in this country.

The building of these clubs in the town of Ayer is only a part of the big program of wholesome entertainment for the soldier, once he is outside of the camp. Trained leaders, skilled in community organization and recreation, will devote all of their time to organizing the forces of the communities for the benefit of the soldier and incidentally for their own protection. Dances, socials and other appropriate parties will be arranged in the towns around the war camps.

The committee will house its resident staff in the old building and the care of the dozen reception rooms and inquiry office on the first and second floors, and the resident's matron, under charge of the Women's Auxiliary, will also cast a watchful eye on the entertainments in the auditorium when dancing, concerts or dramatics draw the feminine element.

In the old building are the kitchens, pantries, bake rooms and service rooms which are necessary for the restaurant into which the Recreation Building can be converted on days of many visitors, and there is a passage connecting the two buildings.

The committee has made a contract with the restaurateur, who heats and lights the building and keeps it clean in return for the privilege.

The Recreation Building, which is approximately 115x75 feet, will have in the basement bowling alleys and pool tables, and bathing facilities for the men. There is also the heating plant, the ice cream chamber and storage space, where the folding chairs for the theatre may alternate with the little round tables of the restaurant, as the hall above may require.

The main auditorium is one story high at the sides, but reaches up in the center clear to the timbered ceiling. There are windows in the upper half like the clerestory of a Gothic church, which give light to the hall or allow those on the outside balconies to look in.

On either side of the entrance lobby are two large counters, one with complete soda and ice cream fittings, and the other arranged for the sale of candy, tobacco and other things.

The floor of the auditorium has ample space for 70 tables, each large enough to seat four or five guests, but such an array would only be necessary on Sundays. Ordinarily there will be tables up and down each side aisle; those next the service entrance to be used for the restaurant, and on the other side for magazines, cards and writing.

At the further end of the auditorium is a large raised stage with footlights and dressing rooms. This building is limited by the appropriation to entirely wood construction, except the foundation, but the use of wood stains inside and out in panelled designs will give it a bright tone meant to tell the enlisted men that they may for the present forget

Too Much Food Is Bad for Man — and So Is Too Little

WE can overindulge in almost anything, such as tea and coffee drinking, and even in the use of water. There is such a thing as "Aquamania" (water lunacy) and we also have food drunkards. Everyone knows that the temperate use of alcoholic beverages is unquestionably injurious, just as every sane man knows that the temperate use of a mild Barley-Malt and Sazer Hop brew, such as BUDWEISER, is the drink of moderation. BUDWEISER sales exceed other beers by millions of bottles, because it is brewed in the good old honest way. Quality has for 60 years been the secret of its success.

the drill regulations and enjoy themselves.

The committee will have final control over the affairs of the clubhouse, but will delegate a large part of the active work to a soldier's committee, and to a professional caterer.

Although any man in uniform will be admitted free of charge to the club and may bring guests, it is proposed to have an enlisted men's organization with a representative from each regiment at Camp Devens, and this body will draw the men, will assist in the "policing" and will consider and transmit any complaints or suggestions which may be made.

WHEN AMERICA FIRST SAW THE "DIVINE SARAH"

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, the celebrated French actress, who is now in this country, made her first appearance in America at Booth's theatre in New York 37 years ago today, Nov. 8, 1880. She broke her contract at the Comedie Francaise in Paris, and was fined $20,000 in order to make her first tour of Great Britain and America. Before returning to Paris she toured North and South America, and all of Europe except Germany, refusing to visit the latter country because of the hatred for the Germans engendered by her experiences during the siege of Paris. From the first Mme. Bernhardt was a favorite on this side of the Atlantic, and she was warmly welcomed when she returned in 1887. Her next visit was in 1891, and five years later she made a "farewell" tour, which she repeated with great success in 1900. During the season of 1905-6 she again toured America, after a brilliant engagement at the Lyric theatre in New York. Owing to the warfare between theatrical managers, she was frequently denied access to playhouses, and played under a huge tent. In 1910-11 Mme. Bernhardt made another "farewell" tour of the United States. Shortly after this one of her legs was amputated. Since her return to this country some time ago she has been living in retirement in the suburbs of New York.

Why I Drink Beer

"—because I've found that after the nervous tension of a day's work there is no better relaxation than a glass of good beer. The health elements contained in the barley and hops, its chief ingredients, have a soothing effect on the nerves."

Business men who take their daily drink of PRIVATE SEAL enjoy it and feel the benefit of its tonic properties. It is good and wholesome—the last drop in every bottle as good as the first. You, too, will enjoy its delicious, appetizing flavor.

PRIVATE SEAL contains the minimum of alcohol with the maximum of tonic and food value—one reason why it's "The Brew for You." Order a case from your dealer—TODAY. See that the label says P. O. N.
